UNION OF "FREE GERMANS."—The N. Y. Journal of Commerce has an excellent article upon our recent exposition of the principles of the platform established by the Free Germans of Louisville and other portions of the country. The remarks of the New York paper are well worthy of earnest consideration, and we wish we had room for them all. That paper says that sixty years ago, on the 20th of September, 1795, an individual, calling himself an American citizen, dared to write to the Father of his Country: "And as to you, sir, treacherous in private friendship and a hypocrite in public life, the world will be troubled to decide whether you are an apostate or an impostor—whether you have abandoned good principles or whether you ever had any." Such was the language addressed from Paris, by Thomas Paine, a foreigner by birth, to George Washington, because the latter refused to prostitute his power as President of the United States in the service of Red Republican Jacobinism. The National Convention had not been dissolved; the 13th Vendémiaire had not rendered impossible a return of the Reign of Terror; the bloody carnival which preceded the Directory still continued; Paine had been a witness of the excesses which had resulted from a system of infidelity and false freedom similar to his own; but the horrors of the revolution had failed to convince him that a people sunk from religion into infidelity becomes a nation of demons. Hence the animosity he entertained against General Washington, and his sneers at the prudence which opposed a barrier to any active demonstration of sympathy in the United States for the anarchical period which succeeded the fall of the Bourbon dynasty. Hence, too, the slighting terms with which the first and best of our Presidents has been ever spoken of by those who consider infidelity to be an integral part of liberty. In the lives and writings of Thomas Paine, however, which were published up to within a very recent period, his attacks upon Washington were suppressed, and it is only of very late years that the increased numbers of the followers of the great infidel have given them boldness to condemn as "mealy-mouthed" the policy of excluding those passages which wound the feelings of veneration entertained for Washington by all true Americans. Particularly since the influx of Germans commenced, which was the consequence of the failure in Europe of the revolutionary movements of 1848, a deluge of fanatical Paints has been poured into the United States, who own no sympathy for the conservative element in our institutions, and whose natural affiliation to all the elements of radicalism in the land bodes evil to the future welfare of our Republic.

The Socialist, Red Republican hatred against religion which has taken such deep root, of late years, in our large cities, and especially among the German population, is a greater evil than it otherwise would be, from the fact that it is partially hidden from the notice of Americans by the screen of a foreign language, behind which it seeks concealment until it shall have gathered sufficient strength to make its influence dominant at the polls. Its power is already felt there, in those States which Germans have thickly settled—and in Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio, and some parts of Illinois, demagogues have been already for years in the habit of gaining the votes of "Free Germans" by real or affected sympathy with their political libertinism. The riots in Cincinnati, some months ago, were a consequence of the war of anarchist savages upon our institutions, and good citizens, in many of the Northwestern States, have been compelled to unite in expressing their indignation against measures proposed, or electioneering Shibboleths introduced by naturalized citizens, which would have been deemed impossible some years ago. As early as 1848, Heine published, in Switzerland, his famous Democratic programme, in which it is declared that no true freedom can exist until Christianity has been bodily exterminated. The same feeling has been transplanted here; its expression is necessarily modified; but a large number of vile German papers, and the countenance of unprincipled office-seekers, are rapidly increasing the evil. The indignation of the country would be aroused if the contents of some of the papers that are published at Cincinnati, Milwaukee, and other cities where the German population is large, were translated into English. They agree together in anti-Christian, Combe-outersm, blasphemous revellings against revealed religion, and identification of compelled unbelief with liberty. Their political tendency is Communist and radical-infidel. Thomas Paine—a man whose name a quarter of a century ago was considered synonymous with deadly sin against the bounteous Creator of the Universe—is their Apostle, and his birth-day is celebrated with military displays, illuminations, and festivities, which have been heretofore considered in America due alone to Washington, whom he reviled. The German programmes which appear from time to time in different localities show, by their similarity, the closeness of the union of all the Red Republicans in support of one common cause, and we trust that their manifestoes will be pondered over by thinking, conservative Americans, and that an antidote will be applied to the infidelity that is growing up amongst us before it has become an incurable evil.

The Memphis Enquirer says that all the world is asking, "Who is Minnie?" Ah, Mr. World, we will introduce her to you one of these days, and you may prepare your old heart for a sensation:

[For the Louisville Bulletin.]

GERTRUDE.

Her silken tresses were unbound,
Her eyes were wildly bright,
And on her pale, cold brow there gleamed
A strange unearthly light;
Her bloodless lips were parted wide,
But not a word she spoke;
Naught save her breathing quick and hard
The painful silence broke.

One jeweled hand a picture held,
And o'er her bosom prest,
As if to still the struggling heart
Within her throbbing breast,
She gazed upon the sparkling eyes
Which for words too deep
Aish escaped her quivering lips,
And then I saw her weep!

Long, long she gazed upon the face
With many a smile and tear,
Kissed it, and whispered gentle words,
And fancied it could hear;
She spoke of days long passed away,
Bright hours when first they met,
And said, "I still remember, love:
Oh! e'en thou art forgotten!"

She murmured, "I am dying now—
I feel that I must go;
But oh! thou wilt not quite forget
One who has loved thee so!
I have no wish to linger here
To be another's bride;
The heart that might not beat for thee
Shall beat for none beside!"

Thou! think of me when lone and still
In my sweet grave I sleep,
And sometimes when the stars keep watch
Thou! think of me and weep!
I shall be with the angels then,
But often I shall rove
From their bright home to whisper thee
Sweet words of Peace and Love!

Love like to ours, deep, pure, and true,
Such love is not of earth;
'Tis of a higher, holier clime:
'Tis of a heavenly birth!
And, dearest, we shall meet again,
I shall meet in Heaven to dwell,
Where all is Love, and Bliss, and Peace!
Farewell!—I go—farewell!"

Farewell! With the deep agony
Thou! think of me and weep!
From her pale lips the life-blood gushed
And bowed across her breast,
The large drops gathered on her brow,
The death-dew cold and chill,
While with a strong, unyielding grasp
She clasped the picture still.

MINNIE.

FAIRMOUNT, HARDMAN CO., TENN., July, 1855.

NIAGARA FALLS—CATARACT HOUSE.—We learn from numerous sources that the season is culminating at Niagara with even more than usual splendor. This is as it should be. Niagara is by far too majestic and ravishing a spectacle to be eschewed by the pleasure-seeking world or any other, and we make no doubt that everybody who leaves home for the refreshing airs of the North will at least pay his humble devotion to the great cataract, if he does not linger days and weeks and months near its enchanting scenes. We are gratified to hear that the Cataract House still preserves its accustomed distinction among the hotels on the American side, and that, notwithstanding the powerful rivals it encounters upon either bank of the rushing flood, it is constantly thronged and overflowing with the elite of the fashionable world.

We regret to learn that a gentleman just from Niagara that some few days since a malicious and wholly unfounded complaint under the new Prohibitory law was lodged against the high-souled and accomplished proprietors of the Cataract, by a person who has lately rendered himself infamous as a common informer. The mere lodgment of the information, independently of the character of the informer, might properly amaze the distant friends of the Cataract and its gentlemanly proprietors, but those who know the informer will think the information the most natural and harmless thing in the world. The fellow, we are assured, is one of the vilest of an intensely vile class. If he had lived in the days of George the Third, when the most of those who know him doubtless wish he had lived, he would probably have spent his life in accumulating Tyburn tickets, and ended it in stretching a Tyburn cord. Prominent among the many incidental evils of the Maine law are the facilities of life and thrift it offers to such pitiful creatures. Let the distant friends of the Cataract and its princely proprietors rest content. The honor of the one is as lofty as the fame of the other is world-wide.

KENTUCKY ELECTIONS.—We shall not encumber our columns any longer with election returns. We shall publish the full official vote as soon as it is received. Returns from 93 counties official show the following result:

Morehead 67,254

Clarke 59,807

Morehead's majority 7,447

The remaining ten counties are reported to give Clarke a majority of 3,349.

The New Orleans papers of the 10th announce the death of L. C. Duncan, Esq., a prominent lawyer of that city, where he has resided since 1812. He was a native of Kentucky.

Capt. Megowan was qualified as Sheriff yesterday, and assumed the duties of the office.

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD.—In reply to the article of our correspondent "Observer," in yesterday's Journal, we would remark that the report of commissioners referred to was made at the instance of a stockholder's meeting and is addressed to the stockholders. Very properly, as we think, the directors have received the report and will present it to the stockholders at the annual meeting in October, and leave it to that body to publish it or not. Meanwhile we can state that the facts disclosed are unimportant, now that the company have settled upon advantageous terms with the former contractors, and the latter have abandoned the contract.

We learn that the company's affairs are now in a prosperous condition, and that the enterprise will be pushed forward promptly and energetically to completion. We expect to be able to furnish the public with more detailed information upon the condition of affairs at an early day.

Of the many excellent schools for girls advertised in our columns at this season, we have not yet particularly noticed the institution established in our immediate neighborhood by the Rev. George Beckett. Mr. Beckett is an accomplished scholar, and devotes himself to teaching because he loves the work, and knows that he has a special aptitude for this responsible and arduous duty. Mr. B. has been engaged for many years in a similar enterprise in Southern Kentucky, and so well established was his reputation there, that, when he removed to this county, nearly the whole body of scholars followed him and became inmates of his family. That family is made to each scholar a true Christian home, distinguished by its quietness, ease, and courtesy. The scholarship of this school is of the highest and most substantial kind. The buildings have been greatly enlarged during the past year, and still further improvements are anticipated. The institution is beautifully situated, five miles from the city, on the Shelbyville turnpike road.

A heavy robbery was perpetrated at Cape May on the 11th inst. The room of Mr. Cody, at the United States Hotel was entered during his absence, and his trunks plundered of much valuable property. Among the articles stolen were a diamond breast pin, valued at $300, a diamond bracelet, two checks for $3,000 each on the Bank of America, New York, drawn to the order of Mr. Cody, and $200 in fifties of the Bank of America, New York. The robbers have not yet been arrested. We hope this is not our fellow citizen of that name.

We saw a disgusting scene at the jail last evening. Officers Kirkpatrick, Weatherford, and Phelps found a woman, with an infant, lying drunk on Market street and using blasphemous language, and brought her to jail. Phelps carried the babe and Kirkpatrick and Weatherford the woman. This was the only arrest made yesterday.

The editor of the Cincinnati Commercial thinks that the affidavits published here are entitled to no respect. He thinks of other people's oaths exactly as they think of his.

There has not been a boat navigating the Wabash for the past month although there has been plenty of water.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was about at a stand last evening with 6 feet 7 inches water in the canal and 4 feet 8 inches on the falls. Another shower fell yesterday morning. About 1 o'clock the thermometer stood at 88 in the shade. The Mississippi at St. Louis as well as its tributaries are falling. Four feet water in the Missouri, 44 feet in the Illinois, and the upper Mississippi was lower than it had been at any previous time this season. The Cumberland was falling at Nashville, but rising above that point. The Nashville Whig, of Wednesday, says:

There are full six feet water on Harpeth shoals—enough for all the boats, but unfortunately there is nothing for them to do.

A letter from Washington, Ark., says that Red river is three feet lower than it was ever known to be, and that it can be forded at almost any point. The merchants in that part of Arkansas are hauling their goods from Alexandria and Gaines's landing. They pay three or four dollars a hundred; and flour is selling at four and five cents—beef six and seven—and bacon twenty-five cents. Salt commands ten dollars a sack!

The Southerner, Capt. Catterlin, is the St. Louis packet, and there is not a better boat in the trade. She arrived yesterday, having towed the Fashion from Mt. Vernon to Portland. We thank her clerk for favors.

We are indebted to the officers of the Tishomingo for favors. The T. leaves for Memphis to-morrow evening.

The Sultana is also due from New Orleans today, and leaves to-morrow evening.

The splendid packet Rainbow leaves for Henderson this evening.

The steamer R. L. Cobb arrived at Nashville on Tuesday.

ARKANSAS.—A letter to the editor from Camden, Ark., dated July 27, gives a gloomy picture of the rivers in that region. The writer says: "I have lived here ten years and I have never seen any thing like it. There are men living here worth $50,000, out of whom you cannot get one cent! Ask a man for money, and he points you to his cotton piled up among others mountain high on the bank of the river. The present crop is promising. A drought set in about the last of June and came near destroying everything but for the last week we have had refreshing rains every day, and farmers are again in good spirits."

Richard P. Robinson, the supposed murderer of Helen Jewett, died at the Galt House, Louisville, Ky., on the 8th inst. For several years past he was known as Richard Parmely.

We see this paragraph going the rounds of the Eastern papers. There is no truth in it.

THE YELLOW FEVER IN NORFOLK AND PORTSMOUTH.—We copy the following from the Richmond Enquirer of Monday morning:

The Curtis Peck brought up a large number of passengers last Friday evening from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Old Point, Hampton, &c. The passengers were permitted to land, while the boat, we learn, went into quarantine, and will discontinue her trips until further notice. By an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that the Augusta has also been taken off the route. So direct communication with Norfolk is suspended. It is estimated that at least 3,000 persons have left Norfolk alone since the fever made its appearance there. A number of citizens collected together on Thursday night, and set fire to "Barry's Row," in Norfolk, in which the fever first made its appearance, and burnt it to the ground. The fever was represented as still on the increase—one physician, it is said, having 20 new cases.

The fever had broken out just back of Hampton in a family recently from the infected region. Indeed, from the reports which have reached us, we should not be surprised if the fever should prevail to a great or less extent in all the low country, where most of the families that have left the infected cities are temporarily sojourning.

Nearly every one who is able is represented as flying from the infected places, and, as both the river boats between Norfolk and Richmond have now stopped running, and the telegraph office is closed, it may be several days before we can receive additional intelligence from the deeply-stricken cities. In the mean time, let us do all we can for those whom necessity compels to remain at home by swelling the subscriptions already started for their relief.

The fever continues to rage in Portsmouth. The board of health reports seven new cases and two deaths in Norfolk on Thursday, and four cases and one death in the hospital.

[From the Cincinnati Gazette of Thursday.]

THE THIRD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE GRAND UNION ASSOCIATION OF STEAMBOAT AND STEAMSHIP ENGINEERS.

The third annual convention of the Grand Union Association of Southern and Western Steamboat and Steamship Engineers commenced its session in this city yesterday. The meetings are held in the hall of the Cincinnati Union Association, on Front, near Main street.

The convention was organized by its proper officers—President, John Hall, of St. Louis; Vice President, Micajah Toole, of Cincinnati; and Grand Secretary, H. H. Harrison, of Nashville, Tenn.; and called to order, when the Grand Secretary reported the following delegates present from the Subordinate Associations, with their proper credentials:

Cincinnati.—Micajah Toole and Daniel L. Thompson.

St. Louis.—John Hall and Albert Stevenson.

Louisville.—John Gault and Richard Goss.

New Albany.—Theodore Elliott and Augustus Jennings.

New Orleans.—Geo. N. Casey and Nelson Vandewater.

Mobile.—A. M. Patterson and John H. Smith.

Nashville.—H. H. Harrison.

Pittsburg and Wheeling.—Delegates not yet arrived.

The subordinate associations to this convention comprise the following number of members, as reported:

Pittsburg, 99; Wheeling, 24; Cincinnati, 136;

Louisville, 104; New Albany, 55; Nashville, 40;

St. Louis, 248; Louisiana, 195; Mobile, 67—total, 908.

The committee to nominate permanent officers of the Association for the ensuing year not being ready to report, they were granted further time—until to-day—to make their report.

A number of other committees were appointed, when, upon motion, the convention adjourned until this morning.

The objects of this Association are set forth in their preamble, which is as follows:

Whereas, we deem it highly important, in order to maintain the position we have assumed, that this Association, composed of representatives from the different ports on the Western and Southern waters, organize ourselves into an Association, to be styled the Union Association of Western and Southern Engineers, that each Association represented in the Grand Union Association shall be allowed to have its own peculiar and distinctive features (provided they are in accordance with the constitution of the Grand Union Association), as the different localities may require, and that the Grand Union Association meet once a year, or whenever the local Associations may deem it necessary, at such time and place as shall be agreed upon, for the purpose of discussing such matters and deciding upon such measures as may be deemed of importance to the Western and Southern Engineers, in each port to be represented by Engineers, who shall be duly elected by their respective Associations. According to the purpose of the Association, to unite and promote our interests, to elevate our character and respectability in every capacity, mental, moral, and practical, we do resolve to constitute steamboat engineering a systematic and responsible occupation; exclusive, different, and independent from any other, and which can only be acquired by theoretical and practical experience.

Great Salt.—The Commercial Bank of Manchester at Yazoo City, Mississippi, on yesterday, through its counsel, L. Madison Day and Smiley & Perrin, filed a bill on the Equity side of the Circuit Court of the United States, in this city, against Henry S. Buckner, to have his discharge in Bankruptcy declared void, and to recover about $120,000, principal and interest. The suit is one of great importance, and if sustained may lead to important results, as the principles settled in the same would be applicable to other similar cases.

Cholera.—Since our last issue there have been two deaths by cholera in our town. Miss Mary A. Moreland died on Sunday morning, and a daughter of Mr. Martin Parish, about twelve years of age. We have heard of four or five other cases, all of which have recovered. We understand that there have been three or four deaths by cholera in the neighborhood of Moreland's, among them that of Mr. Fletcher Wilton, a well-known citizen. — Paris Citizen
